

Think back to what it was like when you first learned of your child's special needs.

What did you do at that time which was helpful?

What did others do or say that was helpful?

What happened that was not helpful?

What are your feelings about your child's special needs now?